PROJECTS

Global Cargo Ship Tracking & Ports Database System | Python, Flask

- Built a Python and Flask-based maritime tracking application featuring a 342-port global catalog with geocoordinates, UN/LOCODE identifiers, annual cargo throughput (MMT), and container capacity (TEU).
- Developed a Flask backend with REST API endpoints and server-rendered HTML pages, enabling full CRUD operations for cargo ship tracking records.
- Implemented geofencing logic using port latitude and longitude boundaries to detect and track cargo ship movement in and out of designated port zones.
- Modeled global shipping routes as a graph and validated connectivity across all 342 ports to ensure accurate route mapping.
- Structured and exported ports and routes data into normalized JSON consumed by the Flask application, applying input validation and exception handling to maintain data integrity.
- Added filtering capabilities for ports by region, country, and classification, including identification of major transshipment hubs.
